Dennis Corporation Attends Ridge View High School Career Fair

COLUMBIA, S.C. – Always aspiring to motivate students, Dennis Corporation participated in the Ridge View High School Career Fair. Two Dennis Corporation employees, Heather Camlin and Aaron Schwartz, attended to discuss the career prospects provided for students interested in the fields of civil engineering, construction management and surveying, all areas of specialization that the company encompasses. Camlin, a former student of Ridge View High School, was more than happy to come out and support her alma mater by presenting the students with the potential job opportunities afforded to them by choosing a career at Dennis Corporation. “The students were all very interested in Dennis Corporation and the prospects they could have by choosing a career in the various industries we specialize in. With so many avenues to choose from, the students have the opportunity to diversify themselves within the respected industries, while still maintaining the personable advantage of working within a small business,” said Camlin.

TaWanna Branham, guidance counselor of Ridge View High, was personally appreciative of the information Dennis Corporation provided. “Our students are very lucky to have people like you in the business world willing to support them in their future careers,” said Branham. She also commented on the high number of students that were influenced by Dennis Corporation because of their visit. As a result, Dennis Corporation will be coming back at a later date to talk in a more intimate setting with students showing interest in the firm.
